

Gen. MacArthur Enters Hospital

WASHINGTON (AP)—General of the Army Douglas MacArthur, a hero of two world wars, is under examination at the Army's Walter Reed Hospital for "abdominal complaints."

The 84-year-old fighter flew to Washington early Monday afternoon from New York where, since 1951, he has been living at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel.

There was no immediate word on the seriousness of his condition, but apparently it was not necessarily of an acute nature because MacArthur walked from the military plane that bore him to the capital, and later walked up a slight incline at the hospital entrance.

Reds Rap LBJ 'Propaganda'

MOSCOW (AP)—Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko charged the Western powers do not want agreements on Soviet disarmament proposals and assailed President Johnson's proposals as propaganda maneuvers.

After resuming on an optimistic note in January, the talks stalled last Thursday. U.S. negotiator William C. Foster left for home after the Soviets rejected his appeal to help end a stalemate.

Pocono Downs Gets Loan

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—Pocono Downs harness race track has arranged to obtain a mortgage loan of about $3 million from a Reading bank, Victor Diehm, track president, said Monday.

If the loan is completed, the promoters will ask the Securities and Exchange Commission to approve an issue of about $2 million in securities.

That amount, with approximately $5 million now available, would be sufficient to finish the track in Plains Township early in 1965, the organization stated.

Peking Softens Soviet Policy

LONDON (AP)—Premier Chou En-lai of Red China called Monday night for unity among "all the peace-loving forces of the world" in a struggle for peace against what he termed imperialist policies of war and aggression.

By implication, in a recorded television interview, Chou seemed to be asking the Soviet Union to close ranks with Communist China. The Communist parties of the two Red Giants have been engaged in a dispute over ideology. Chou said the West is trying to divide them even further.

He said that China and the Soviet Union would fight together in any war against imperialism.

Ask Peace Unit For Cyprus

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—Brazil and four other nations proposed Monday that the U.N. Security Council send a peacekeeping force to Cyprus to cope with the threat of war in the eastern Mediterranean. A Western source expressed belief it would win council approval.

An informant close to Cyprus said he believed Archbishop President Makarios would approve the compromise resolution worked out by Brazil, Morocco, Norway, Bolivia and the Ivory Coast.

Freer Access Of News Sought

WASHINGTON (AP)—A Senate Judiciary subcommittee endorsed Monday a freedom-of-movement bill with a provision for court enforcement.

The bill is designed to provide full disclosure of information by government agencies unless information is exempted under clearly delineated statutory language.

Market Stages Strong Advance

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market staged another strong advance Monday, pushing into new high ground in heavy trading.

Those who believed that the rise of the Dow Jones industrial average above 800 at the close Friday would signal profit taking were proved mistaken. The Dow Industrials moved up 26.1 to 802.75.

Volume swelled to 5.7 million shares from 4.98 million on Friday.

Gov. Scranton Urges Cuban Quarantine

Hoffa Called Victim Of 'Foul, Filthy' Plot

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn. (AP)—Teamsters union President James R. Hoffa was accused by the government Monday of taking part in "one of the greatest attacks on the jury system ever known in America."

His defense, terming Hoffa a clean-living family man, declared him the victim of "a foul, filthy plot" conceived in jail by a convicted felon—the government's chief witness at Hoffa's trial on charges of attempted jury tampering.

Jury Listens
The jury of eight men and four women listened intently to the sharply contrasting closing arguments by James Neal, chief prosecutor; and James Haggerty, Hoffa's chief defense lawyer.

The jurors will begin sometime Tuesday to weigh them along with five weeks of supporting evidence. The trial, which began Jan. 20, entered its seventh week today. The first week was spent in selecting the jury, which has been locked up each night in a Chattanooga hotel.

Hoffa and five other men are on trial on charges of attempting to fix the 1962 Nashville jury which heard a conspiracy charge against Hoffa. That jury could not agree and a mistrial resulted.

Closing Arguments
Neal and Haggerty devoted a major portion of their closing arguments before the jury to Edward Grady Partin, a Baton Rouge, La., Teamsters official who became the principal government witness at the trial.

In six days of testimony, Partin was the only government witness to link Hoffa with alleged efforts to fix the 1962 jury. He claimed he got his information during the Nashville trial, when, he said, he had Hoffa's confidence while making almost daily reports to the Justice Department.

Partin admitted he once served a reformatory term for burglary, and has several cases—including a 26-count indictment for embezzling union funds—pending against him.

Clean Jimmy
"Mr. Hoffa stands before you with a clean record and a clean past," said Haggerty. "I ask you to compare Mr. Hoffa and his past and Mr. Partin and his past."

"The government does not contend Mr. Partin has led a perfect life," Neal told the jury. "The reason the government tells you to believe Mr. Partin is because it checked and found all he said was happening actually happened, and what he said would happen did happen."

Haggerty pictured Partin as a convicted felon, a man of violence, a kidnaper and "a pharisee whose avocation was chasing women."

"Picture in your mind," he told the jurors, "Mr. Partin in a lonely jail. His position is hopeless."

"But in his cunning and criminal mind comes a thought: 'Perhaps the Justice Department will restore my life if I can deliver the life of James R. Hoffa.' Thus, a foul, filthy plot was born. Partin was its father, the Department of Justice was its mother."

Government Accused
The architect of the plot, said Haggerty, was Walter Sheridan, special consultant to Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy who has been assigned to the Hoffa case for more than two years.

Defense lawyer Jacques Schiff told the jurors the case boils down to "Robert Kennedy and his ax man, Walter Sheridan, versus James R. Hoffa and so forth."

90 Meters Planned For Mt. Pocono

MOUNT POCONO — Mt. Pocono Borough Council last night voted to advertise for 90 parking meters to be installed on Main Street.

There are no meters in the borough at this time. They are expected to be installed by May.

In other business, Donald Sables, secretary, said February's expenditures were $353.33 for general government; $236.48 for protection for persons and property; $399.15, garbage collection; $931.78, highways; $177.20, street lighting; and $35.80, insurance.

Borough officials were authorized to borrow $2,000 to meet current expenses from the East Stroudsburg National Bank.

The board announced approval of the 1964 budget at the last meeting. Bids for the parking meters will be solicited.

Strewn Wreckage

85 Found Dead In Downed Plane

TAHOE VALLEY, Calif. (AP)—A helicopter on Monday found the wreckage of a big airliner strewn over a snowy peak where 85 passengers and four crew members crashed to their deaths. The plane had been flying to Lake Tahoe's gambling resorts.

There were no survivors. The pilot of the Paradise Airlines Constellation, caught Sunday in a blinding snowstorm over the 6,223-foot-high lake, apparently headed for Reno and just missed clearing the peak. Deaths of the 85 Californians brought the toll of four recent air crashes to 236. Eighty-three persons were killed near Lunenburg, Austria, 58 in New Orleans' Lake Pontchartrain, and 20 in Japan.

The crash scene is so isolated that helicopters flew men there to help dig bodies out of the snow and load them on snow tractors for the trip to a Zephyr Cove mortuary.

The biggest part left was the tail section. The middle fin was visible. A few feet further on was the main part of the tail section.

A short distance away there appeared to be wing sections. A panel, probably part of the main cabin, was between these.

The left main landing gear was attached to an engine. Further on, over the top of the ridge, was the nose wheel.

The passengers all were from California. Most of them lived in the San Jose and Santa Clara areas, 50 miles south of San Francisco.

Most of the tickets were purchased at San Jose taverns under provisions for refunds by the Nevada casinos at Lake Tahoe. Several had been traded by the original purchasers.

The veteran pilot of the plane, Henry Norris, 43, had radioed at 11:29 a.m. Sunday that he was starting a 27-mile run over Lake Tahoe for a visual landing at the airport at the south end of the lake.

Two minutes later Norris began a message, "Flight 901" then it broke off.

Portland Gets Bids For Well

PORTLAND — Portland Borough Council last night opened four bids for a ten inch well to be drilled in the borough and to be operated by the Water Co., a firm owned by the council.

The council deferred action on the bids until Wednesday, March 11.

The bids are being studied by council and its solicitor. The contract will be awarded at a special meeting on Wednesday, March 11.

In other business council appointed a three man committee to study the borough's needs for Civil Defense. Appointed were William Golden, Wallace Stine and Neal Bort.

They will make a report of their study at the April meeting.

In other business the council received a letter from the Public Utility Commission in Harrisburg. The letter stated that it was the desire of PUC to abolish two grade crossings in the borough. Council approved this.

The letter also stated that Lehigh and New England Railroad, the firm owning the grade crossings, has agreed to remove all its equipment and have the crossings in good condition on or before Dec. 1, 1964.

Rocky Hit For 'Razzle-Dazzle'

BERLIN, N. H. (AP)—Sen. Barry Goldwater Monday accused Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller of trying to win the Republican presidential nomination by beguiling voters with "razzle-dazzle" methods.

The Arizona senator told cheering partisans at a rally that he overflew the 300-seat Berlin City Hall in obvious reference to Rockefeller, his chief opponent, in next week's presidential nominating balloting — that he does not believe "votes can be bought by a smile or by kissing babies or by eating hot dogs."

UC Bill Changes Foreseen

HARRISBURG (AP)—The chairman of the Senate Labor and Industry Committee indicated Monday that Gov. Scranton's proposed unemployment compensation program may be amended in committee.

"A number of changes appear to have substantial support among members of the legislature," declared Sen. D. Elmer Hawbaker, R-Franklin, following a two-hour hearing on the issue.

Hawbaker added that he hopes to get the bills to the floor for a showdown vote "no later than next week."

Meanwhile the House and Senate met in regular session to continue their deliberations on the Scranton administration's proposed $1.163 billion spending program for fiscal 1964-65.

The Senate passed $29 million in appropriations while the House approved $8.6 million in spending proposals.

Hawbaker said he does not expect any more hearings on the subject of unemployment compensation.

He listed four areas of possible amendment he said would be given priority by his committee when it meets Tuesday in executive session.

"For one thing, there is a great deal of opposition to the proposed elimination of the lower eligibility bracket from $10 to $14," Hawbaker said.

Other suggested amendments would eliminate the "burden of proof" clause, strike out restrictions on seasonal workers and alter regulations for pregnant women.

"The Scranton proposals also would revise benefits for seasonal workers, making them eligible only during the normal season of their employment."

Small Fry Smoke To Act Mature

WASHINGTON (AP)—They do it to show off, or to appear more mature than they are, or because they are flunking their school work and need another type of status symbol.

Whatever the reason, a survey showed Monday, an increasing number of youngsters are smoking regularly as early as the 5th and 6th grades.

A teacher in Wataga, Ill., reported one 3rd grader in a class of 20 smokers, one 4th grader in a class of 25, and three 5th graders in a class of 22.

A 6th grade teacher in Edinburg, Tex., said 20 per cent of his pupils smoke.

Three 6th grade teachers in Wichita, Kan., said 10 of their 75 pupils smoke.

The survey was taken by Young Citizens, a weekly current events classroom publication, published by the Civic Education Service. Nearly 150 teachers from every section of the country responded.

Only a handful of grade school teachers said smoking is not a problem. Most of these teach in rural areas.

There was general agreement that a few pupils become habitual smokers in grade school, more take it up in junior high, and in some high schools as many as 50 per cent of the students smoke regularly.

Several commented that the recent government report listing smoking as a major health hazard has been received with contempt by the youngsters.

One unsigned letter said, "The kids seem to think a cure for lung cancer will be discovered before they get it."

Governor Rejects Any Nod For VP

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP)—Gov. William W. Scranton proposed Monday the clamping of a strict quarantine on Communist Cuba, including, if necessary, the use of force to cut off Soviet oil shipments to Castro.

The Pennsylvania governor, widely regarded as a potent possibility for the Republican presidential nomination, said in an interview with The Associated Press he doesn't want to become a presidential candidate and doesn't think that is necessary.

Not Interested In V.P.
For the first time he said without qualification that he would reject any offer of the vice presidential nomination, a goal for which Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz., an avowed presidential candidate, said Scranton should be aiming.

Despite his disclaimer of any national ambitions, Scranton was willing to air his views on pressing foreign and domestic policy issues.

Asked what he thinks President Johnson's administration might be doing about Cuba that isn't, he replied:

Would OK Blockade
"Well first of all, I think the main thing to do is to try and work with your allies to initiate a quarantine. If this is impossible, after a good deal of effort made with our allies to do so, with the help of the OAS (Organization of American States) and Latin American States, take a further step, provided there is a continuance of the subversive activities emanating from Cuba, such as is going on in Nicaragua, Venezuela, and other Latin American countries, a form of blockade. This would mean a blockade if we could not effectuate a quarantine."

What kind of blockade?
For instance, the quarantine of Russian oil shipments?

A. Yes.
Q. Couldn't this mean the possible use of force?

A. It could.
Q. Would you be willing to do that?

A. Yes, if we could not implement a quarantine.

Panama Crisis
Scranton was asked how far he would go in meeting the Panamanian demands for revision of the canal treaty?

"I would like to know what the treaty says and then work out whatever arrangements seem right under the treaty itself," he said. "It is my understanding that the actual making-up of the treaty is such that there is some basis of concern as to what legally it means. Precisely what this is, I don't know."

Q. Would you accept the premise that we should at this time renegotiate the treaty?

A. No, I don't accept that premise. I said that I wanted to know what our present treaty says.

Q. You wouldn't have discussion with Panama of the treaty itself?

A. I want to know first what the treaty says.

Viet Nam
Asked if he would favor carrying the war in South Viet Nam to the Communists in North Viet Nam, the governor replied:

"I haven't the slightest idea, nor does anybody else. I don't get all of the information coming out of southeast Asia, the intelligence reports from the CIA or the State Department or defense. Until I know precisely what the story is or precisely as I could get it from those reports, I would not indicate what kind of action to take. I say this—that we should do everything within our power and means to make sure that southeast Asia does not go totally Communist."

Not Informed
He doesn't think the governor said in response to another question, that the American people are being fully informed on the situation in South Viet Nam.

"It seems to change every month or so," he said. "A short time ago they told us that everything was going along much better and now we are being told that it isn't. Maybe things change, but I doubt if they do that rapidly. McNamara is on his way back for the second time."

Q. Would he accept the subsequent report from Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara?

A. His report to the President, I am sure, will be just as factual and clear as he can make it," the governor replied. "I am a little disturbed that only a short time ago he told us that everything was fine there."

UN Withdrawal
How about withdrawing from the United Nations if the Chinese Communists get in?

"I think this depends entirely on how they get in and under what circumstances," he said. "I don't want the Chinese Communists in the U. N. It is not a peace-loving nation and I don't think they belong there. If they are voted in or just because they are voted in, I don't think we should remove ourselves and make it impossible for the U. N. to operate."

"But, when I say that it depends on what circumstances, I don't know whether they are going to come in as a normal nation or, possibly, as a member of the Security Council. Until I know precisely what the circumstances of the case are at this time I wouldn't want to make a final judgment on that."

Two Chinas
What about recognizing two Chinas?

"I am not in favor of our having a two-China policy," he replied. "If the U. N. accepted both of them, it would depend under what circumstances they accepted them. I don't think the fact that the Communist Chinese came into the U. N. by itself would be a reason for us to immediately remove ourselves."

"At this time," he was asked, "do you think that Khrushchev is really trying to achieve co-existence with us or is this just another of the Kremlin's tricks?"

"I don't know what Khrushchev is trying to do," he said. "I have no inside information. I don't get the information even that the federal government gets on these matters. I do think that it is important for us to make every effort to keep the fissure going between the Soviet regime and Communist China and widening and deepening it any way we can."

Backs Rights Bill
In answers to questions on domestic issues, Scranton said he opposes weakening the House-passed Civil Rights Bill to gain Senate approval of the measure. If he faced the same conditions which confronted former President Dwight D. Eisenhower and the late President John F. Kennedy, he said he would have used troops to enforce federal court orders.

He called for a reduction in federal spending to accompany the tax cut, to avoid inflation. He proposed financing health care for the elderly out of general tax revenues instead of through the social security system.

Q. What was the result of the "deep thought" you promised General Eisenhower that you would give in the matter of seeking the Republican nomination?

Mind Unchanged
A. I haven't changed my opinion any, so far. I am still thinking. I don't deny that I may well for some time I still feel very strongly that I don't want to do this. I am not a candidate, I don't want to be a candidate, and I don't think it is necessary. I think you have got plenty of good ones.

With the tax reduction now law, do you believe that federal spending should be reduced?

A. Yes, I do. I think if we have this shot in the arm approach in a good economic period that we can lead ourselves into inflation if we don't start cutting expenditures.

Q. Do you believe that compromises are going to be necessary or desirable to get Senate approval of the House civil rights bill?

A. As far as I am concerned, it is not necessary or desirable.

Q. George Meany says that in the guise of attacking unemployment compensation, you are attacking the unemployed by proposing the revision of state unemployment compensation.

State News Roundup

Clark Sure Of Blatt Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—U.S. Sen. Joseph S. Clark, D-Pa., conferred privately with Genevieve Blatt Monday and then announced the state's internal affairs secretary would win the Democratic senatorial nomination in the April 28 primary.

Miss Blatt is opposing Justice Michael A. Musmanno of the state Supreme Court, slated by the state organization, and David B. Roberts, Allegheny County prothonotary.

Clark, former Philadelphia mayor, said after the two-hour strategy session that "Miss Blatt will win because of the tremendous grass roots support she has among Democratic voters throughout the state." He added:

"I intend to campaign all over the state on her behalf and will also help raise the funds necessary to make her campaign effective."

"She is better qualified in terms of experience, ability and integrity than either of her opponents to serve the people of Pennsylvania."

Asks Curb On Smoke Sales

HARRISBURG (AP) — The state's attorney general appealed this past weekend to all county district attorneys for their assistance in preventing cigarette sales to minors in Pennsylvania.

Noting that state law forbids the sale of cigarettes to anyone under 21, Atty. Gen. Walter E. Alessandro urged the district attorneys to implement the comprehensive education program started by the state health department to emphasize the evils of smoking, especially to teenagers.

Steel Market Future Bright

CLEVELAND (AP) — Orders for construction products have picked up earlier than expected and are bolstering the steel market, Steel Magazine has said.

"Delivery promises on wide and heavy plates on heavy shapes are lengthening," said the trade journal. Result: "More and more buyers are asking mills what they can ship for stock."

The metalworking weekly said steelmakers admit they are surprised by the construction market's strength. It placed the value of construction of all types in January at $4.6 billion and said that was almost 10 per cent greater than in January, 1963.

"Steel sales executives believe construction demand will accelerate enough in the next few weeks to offset any slackness that may develop in auto industry buying," Steel said.

Demos, GOP Share Rights Platform

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., seeking reelection, and two Democratic opponents for his Senate seat, addressed a civil rights rally sponsored by the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People Sunday.

Also on hand were State Supreme Court Justice Michael A. Musmanno, organization backed candidate for the Democratic Senate nomination, and Secretary of Internal Affairs Genevieve Blatt, who also is seeking the Democratic nomination in the April 28 primary.

All three addressed the 4,500 persons on hand.

Musmanno, the first to speak, recalled how his testimony at the Eichmann trial was questioned by defense counsel Robert Servatius because Musmanno was not Jewish.

"Anyone who is a victim of persecution is my brother," said Musmanno, who served as a judge at the Nuremberg war crimes trial.

Scott alluded to a civil rights bill now facing a filibuster by Southern senators. He said:

"I am the only one here who can do anything about the filibuster and the rights bill—who can vote for you, who can do the missionary work for you."

"What you want is right, I am with you and we will indeed overcome," he concluded to a tremendous applause.

Miss Blatt, referring to the Freedom March on Aug. 28, called her candidacy a "similar walk."

Both she and Scott said they attended the march on Washington last summer.

"I subscribe to the idea of giving qualified persons any opportunities they are qualified to take," said Miss Blatt. She said the first secretary she hired as a public official was a Negro woman.

Harris Poll

Lodge Rates High In New Hampshire

CONCORD, N. H.—The central facts of this strange primary election among GOP voters of New Hampshire are these: Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. has been on the ballot, would score a clear-cut victory over Nixon, Goldwater and Rockefeller.

A majority of voters with a preference would like to write in the name of a candidate (chiefly Lodge or Nixon) rather than vote for Goldwater, Rockefeller, Margaret Chase Smith or the other candidates listed on the ballot.

This deep desire to look elsewhere than to declared candidates is a mark of the failure of both of the two front-runners, Goldwater and Rockefeller, to really impress the Republican voters of New Hampshire.

Aided by voter problems in writing in names, Goldwater and Rockefeller are still in the lead and with over a week to go are running in an absolute dead-heat. Goldwater is the declining candidate here and he has now come back to the field. As a result, Rockefeller's chances of winning have materially improved, though he has not really gained in popularity.

The real key of this primary election is whether Republican voters will surmount the technical problems of writing in a name and record a miracle in modern Presidential politics.

Since January, Lodge has moved into the lead as the first choice preference of New Hampshire Republicans:

	Per Cent	Per Cent
Lodge	31	28
Nixon	24	29
Goldwater	18	18
Rockefeller	12	12
Smith	4	1
Romney	2	3
Seranton	1	3
Stassen	1	1
Not sure	7	5

Behind by one point in January, Lodge has now moved out into a full seven-point lead over Nixon. However, the New Hampshire ballot will not have either Lodge or Nixon on it. Therefore, voters were asked which of the five listed candidates they would vote for. Once they had made this choice, each person sampled was then asked if they would prefer to write in the name of a candidate not listed, as permitted under New Hampshire voting law. The results of this simulated primary show a significant trend:

Total GOP Voters	Now	Jan.
	Per Cent	Per Cent
Lodge (write in)	23	19
Nixon (write in)	20	20
Goldwater	19	20
Rockefeller	16	23
Smith	4	1
Stassen	3	1
Others (write in)	2	4
Not sure	13	11

In many ways the central meaning of this primary election is that the two front-runners, Goldwater and Rockefeller, are not the real choices of a not-very-happy Republican electorate, despite the likelihood at this writing that either one or the other will receive the most votes in this primary. Voters were asked which, if any, of the GOP candidates they would find it impossible to vote for in November were they the ultimate Republican choice:

Candidates GOP Voters Could Not Support	Now	Jan.
	Per Cent	Per Cent
Goldwater	25	15
Smith	18	26
Stassen	18	15
Rockefeller	14	16
Romney	5	4
Nixon	5	5
Seranton	4	3
Lodge	2	2

Lodge is the most popular and the least unpopular of this spread-out Republican field. It would take a near miracle in politics, aided by effective organization, to have a write-in victory. It is mainly now a matter of man vs. the intricacies of the ballot.

In this analyst's experience, there has never been a more difficult or confused Presidential primary. The field has not narrowed with campaigning. Rather, it has broadened. The write-in difficulty might leave the real choice of New Hampshire Republicans unrecorded at the polls.

Wirtz Okays Some Parts Of UC Bill

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Labor Secretary Willard Wirtz at a news conference, approved some aspects of the proposed changes in Pennsylvania's unemployment compensation laws, challenged others and shied away from the political aspects of the changes.

At a news conference preceding an American for Democratic Action dinner, Wirtz said he would have "serious disagreement" with Gov. William Scranton's proposal to deduct pension or social security payments from jobless pay benefits.

He added he favored the proposal to increase the base wage from $3,000 to $3,600 on which employers pay unemployment taxes.

The Lenten Story

BY WOOD ISHMAEL

THE WASHING OF THE FEET

Before taking leave of His Apostles, Christ gave them a lasting lesson in humility. Wrapping a towel around Himself, he poured water into a basin and began to wash their feet.

Simon Peter was aghast at his Master's actions. "Lord," he said, "Thou shalt never wash my feet!"

Jesus answered him, "If I do not wash thee, thou shalt have no part of Me."

Simon Peter said unto Him: "Lord, not only my feet, but also my hands and my head." (John XIII:9) 3-3

Delaware Planners Very Active With Only $500 Cost In 3 Years

By GIL MURRAY
Record Staff Writer

CHILD'S PARK — The Delaware Township Planning Commission in Pike County has been in operation for three years. It has caused four ordinances to be adopted and has spent less than $500.

How could a planning commission keep its three-year budget down to $500?

"We appointed five men experienced in some phase of planning and asked them to take a sensible approach to the whole problem of planning and zoning," said William Reser, a supervisor of the Pike County township.

Limited Planning, Zoning — And the program of limited planning and zoning has worked well. Our initial aim was to stop some of the bad experiences we were having in the township," he added.

Delaware Township's experience with its planning commission is in direct conflict with the idea a municipality must immediately hire a professional planner to initiate a planning program on the local level.

The township's planning program was started and maintained with no help from professional planners or grant or loan money from the federal or state government.

"We are going at this on a small basis. We are trying to prevent certain things from happening," said Ernest Platfoot, commission member and a retired General Motors employee.

Four Control Areas — So far the commission has worked out programs covering individual sewage systems, garbage disposal, building permits and restrictions locating house trailers in the township.

The supervisors have taken all the commission's suggestions and made them into township ordinances.

The commission's success revolves around its five members, all of whom are either retired or working at some important aspect of planning.

Members are, in addition to Platfoot, Arch Christian, chairman and a retired employee of a telephone company; Daniel Royer, a retired engineer; Dewey Kingston, a building contractor; and Budde Braunbaugh, an accountant for the state in Harrisburg.

Many Helpers — Platfoot said the commission receives help from many state agencies and from municipalities that have already adopted planning and zoning codes.

The ordinance the township adopted covering the installation of individual sewage disposal systems is a model ordinance drawn up by the U.S. Public Health Service and the state Dept. of Health.

Sewage Ordinance — It regulates the installation of septic tanks or other subsurface disposal fields and is enforced by the supervisors.

It requires minimum distances for such systems from property lines, occupied buildings, buried water pipe under pressure, domestic water supplies and buried water pipe under suction.

"We have the Monroe and Pike County sanitarian inspect the site of a proposed sewage to see if the soil will absorb what the system will discharge."

"Then the supervisors inspect the installation before it is covered with earth to make sure it is the required size for the amount of sewage it will handle."

"Then if everything is in order we give the person a $10 permit and they can go ahead and finish the job," said Reser.

Sanitary Land Fill — The township maintains a sanitary landfill for garbage disposal. In places where there are no incineration facilities this is required by the State Dept. of Health.

"The township issues permits to use the landfill to owners of private homes for $7.50; to hotels for $35, and to large camps for $150," said Reser.

Set-Back Regulation — "The building permit we issue for $3 is not much of an ordinance but it accomplishes and gives us a more accurate picture of what building is taking place in the township," he said.

Platfoot said the new trailer ordinance requires a person to own 22,000 square feet of land before a trailer can be located in the township.

"We are aiming to make these trailers a permanent home. They must build a permanent foundation, take the trailer's wheels off and build a septic tank."

"In this way we can keep the assessments on trailers from decreasing each year. If you don't do this a trailer can decrease in value each year like a car," said Platfoot.

Junk Permit — The commission is presently working on a proposed junk ordinance that would require junk dealers or anyone with junk on his property to get a permit. They will also be required to build fences to hide junk from the public view, according to Platfoot.

Tocks Island Impetus — Why all this work on planning and zoning?

STROUDSBURG — R. LeRoy Dengler, chairman of the Mount Pocono Airport Authority of the Pocono Mountains Airport, yesterday asked the Monroe County Commissioners for the airport.

Dengler said that the authority has laid out a $64,000 project to build hangars, office space, and to grade at the airport.

"We would like to have the project completed by July 1," Dengler said.

now, let's do it and get it over with," Dengler told the commissioners.

He said that he had talked with Clinton Bruch of the Shiffler Bituminous Co., Inc. about renovations to one section of an runway. Complete two-inch overlay for the strip would cost $2,000, while a patch job would cost $5,000.

U.S. State Aid Possibility

He said that there is a chance that the government and the state would together absorb 75 per cent of the cost of the $32-

He said this is based on the assessed valuation of the municipalities over 10 years ago, and he said the authority would like to see the current mill tax re'vised, but applied to the current assessed value.

"This would give us slightly over $10,000 per year from this source," he said.

"With this amount of money we could apply for enough money to complete the project and

Grass-Roots Planning

The three-year-old planning commission of Delaware Township in Pike County has proved that a small township can get a good start toward planning for the future without spending thousands of dollars.

The planning commission of that township which stands directly in the path of the proposed Tocks Island Dam reservoir and recreation area has already adopted some rudimentary regulations to control the effects of sudden growth.

Without federal aid or professional planning consultants, Delaware Township has adopted control of individual septic tanks, garbage disposal, new buildings, and house trailers. See story on Page 2.

It is a healthy example for other townships in Pike and Monroe Counties which will soon have to cope with the effects of sudden land and building booms, due to Tocks Island Dam or Interstate Rl. 80 development.

Scranton Speaks, Reluctantly

Although he repeated his unwillingness to fight for the Republican presidential nomination, Governor William Scranton talked for all the world like a candidate in an exclusive interview with the Associated Press published on page one today.

Governor Scranton said flatly that he would reject an invitation to run for vice president on the Republican ticket. But he still has not said flatly that he never will run for President.

But he has maintained right along that no red blooded American could turn down "a pure and honest draft," whatever that is.

Not every municipality can do all that is necessary by itself. Professional planners can be useful helpers at some point in county, borough and township planning or preparation of zoning, building, or other regulatory codes.

But much can be done by people themselves in getting planning and zoning started without great expense. Model codes can be followed without paying professional consultants to provide them.

The time will come for Delaware Township and every township in the Tocks Island impact area when more complicated planning will have to be done, and special regulations for special situations will have to be adopted.

But the reluctant game of waiting continues.

Governor Scranton is apparently unwilling to be the Adlai Stevenson of 1964. He doesn't want to run and be defeated, as the polls tell him any Republican will be unless Johnson takes a major nosedive before the election.

It is an understandable position, but he may have to play Adlai Stevenson to the hilt and reluctantly accept the nomination.

East Stroudsburg Vote On County Unit Questioned

Editor, The Daily Record:

The about face executed by the East Stroudsburg School Board, voting unanimously for a single school district in Monroe County after having previously endorsed a four district plan, made very interesting reading.

The motives that prompted the decision were, in my opinion, of a purely selfish nature, and this part of their minutes should not have been given any publicity whatever.

Possibly the Board was proud of their plan to have the rest of the County pick up the tab and pay a portion of their obligations.

It was amusing to read that the only reason for switching to a single school district was for economy and efficiency.

The article reads further that figures furnished by the Assistant County Superintendent Walter Sebring indicate that if Monroe County had been a one district system in 1962-63 the property tax assessment, county-wide, would have been approximately 38 mills, which is 10 mills less than East Stroudsburg's current tax.

Mr. Bunnell, secretary of the East Stroudsburg Board, then said that taxes from industries that exist, or are being contemplated in other areas of the county, would help to pay East Stroudsburg's tax burden on a single district basis.

I think the East Stroudsburg

Board should have been a bit more subtle in arriving at this decision, and possibly they might have been able to sneak the plan through on the unsuspecting balance of the county.

Perhaps they were proud of this ingenious means of bringing about their system of efficiency and economy. The five man county board, who previously had voted for a four district plan with only one dissenting vote, are now being influenced by the turn about of the East Stroudsburg Board, the very ready figures furnished by Assistant County Superintendent Sebring and the indecision of Mr. Hutchinson, who in one recent article in the Record says he is just listening and will not be disappointed at whatever way the county board chooses to go, and then in a later article lists 10 specific reasons if and when he voted in favor of a single county unit.

These 10 specific reasons read by Mr. Hutchinson look very well in print, but are very much in line with East Stroudsburg's master plan of economy and efficiency.

Under the one district plan there would be a nine man board of school directors, who would no doubt be selected from the several districts on a population basis.

This would allocate at least five or six members from the Stroudsburg area and the remaining three or four members distributed over the balance of the County.

Also Mr. Bunnell stated that the tax base would be the same for the entire county, which would increase the millage in most of the other districts, and at the same time lower the rate in the boroughs.

I hope that many of the taxpayers in the outlying areas will have read the articles in the Daily Record past week and give some serious thought to the pressure being exerted on the county board by the East Stroudsburg School Board.

This is evident from another article in a later issue of the Record as follows: The switch in sentiment favoring a county-wide plan stems from the recent endorsement of the single county unit by the East Stroudsburg School Board.

This action puts Bunnell, president of the County Board and a member of the East Stroudsburg School Board behind the move for a county unit.

At the time of this writing, neither the county office or the county board has advanced good sound reasons for favoring the single county unit, except that it will lower the tax burden of favored districts at the expense of other districts already hard pressed to meet their own obligations.

I sometimes wonder, if and when a single unit is established in the county, will the nine man board strive to equalize the facilities in the several high schools. For instance, the rural schools should also enjoy the luxury of indoor swimming pools.

HARRISBURG — Mounting irritation and anger perhaps best describe the feelings of a growing number of upstate lawmakers who feel a legislative probe of the Philadelphia traffic ticket racket foisted on their upstate constituents not only should be authorized — but authorized post haste!

A bipartisan resolution calling for such an investigation was introduced in the House last month sponsored by two Republican members and two Democratic members of the House — but since introduction it has remained in the House Rules Committee chaired by Majority Floor Leader Kenneth B. Lee, of Eagles Mere, Sullivan County.

The amazing extent of the Philadelphia traffic ticket "confidence game" wherein names of upstate motorists not in or near Philadelphia on the traffic violation date cited — was first disclosed statewide by this column in a series of four articles late in January and prompted introduction of the legislative investigation resolution last month.

Since that time the "evidence file" — comprising evidence turned over to this column by victims of the racket themselves wherein names of those cited apparently are pulled willy-nilly from a registration list by the big city boys in Philadelphia — has grown to amazing proportions.

Also Mr. Bunnell stated that the tax base would be the same for the entire county, which would increase the millage in most of the other districts, and at the same time lower the rate in the boroughs.

I hope that many of the taxpayers in the outlying areas will have read the articles in the Daily Record past week and give some serious thought to the pressure being exerted on the county board by the East Stroudsburg School Board.

Representative William F. Renwick, Democrat, Elk County, on the floor of the House the other day:

"Mr. Speaker, I have gotten to the point where I think that we in the House with all the correspondence — and I know a number of you people have had correspondence on this particular issue — would like to have something done."

Mr. Renwick then asked Rule Committee Chairman Lee (from upstate Sullivan County, no less!) if he had any plans for taking up the matter in his (Rules) committee, to which Mr. Lee replied:

"I have no personal plans on it, if the members of the Rules Committee though, have an inclination to consider it, I would have no objections to considering it."

(Committee chairmen themselves hold life or death say over any legislation referred to their committees.)

The cudgel was immediately picked up at that point by another nettled member of the House, this time a Republican — Representative Albert L. McCandless, Butler County.

"Recently an attorney in our city of Butler received one of these summons and called me and I stopped in and brought the papers and correspondence that he had down to the Attorney General. I was practically shoved aside with an explanation that this was all done through mistakes down there in the city.

"I think this: I have no complaints from other cities such as Pittsburgh, Erie, Scranton and so on or other larger cities, but there has been too much of this out of Philadelphia. This past week I talked with a rural mail carrier out of Butler who had two of his citizens that he served on his route who received these. Many people have come to me with complaints on this."

"I think it is terrible when citizens are harassed with this sort of thing. The Attorney General told me that all they have to do is go and make an affidavit and send it in that they have not been in the city of Philadelphia and they are let off."

"Why should a citizen have to go to the trouble and spend the time to go and have an affidavit made and pay for it to get out of something that they did not have anything to do with? I think an investigation should be conducted on this thing in Philadelphia and have it stopped one way or another."

When the traffic ticket goons of the Quaker City cite a school district jeep (Lebanon) as having been in violation and when they start summonses over the signature of a deceased magistrate, seemingly it's time for the start of a legislative probe.

What about it, Mr. Lee!

WASHINGTON — The man to watch in the strife-torn Cyprus crisis is Dr. Vassos Lyssarides, private physician of Archbishop Makarios.

He is clearing the way for a Russian beachhead inside the Makarios government by using his close personal ties with the Cypriot President to bring local AKEL (Communist) party members into positions of power.

According to the latest U.S. intelligence estimate, Dr. Lyssarides masterminded Archbishop Makarios' strategy in the United Nations, blocking the use of a U.S.-British proposed NATO peace-keeping force in Cyprus.

He also engineered Premier Khrushchev's blunt diplomatic intervention in the Cyprus crisis in exchange for Makarios' promise to put two AKEL members in his cabinet in the next government shuffle. Intelligence authorities are warning that Dr. Lyssarides is backing up this diplomatic intrigue by creating a "fifth column" Soviet military force. He is arming several thousand Communists in his own private army, the second largest on Cyprus, with Soviet-made arms smuggled from Russia through the United Arab Republic.

Since the advent of the current crisis, intelligence reports have made it increasingly clear that the chief stumbling block to a peaceful solution of the island's ethnic strife is the influence Dr. Lyssarides has on Makarios.

He has succeeded in getting the 50-year-old spiritual and political leader of the island's 500,000 Greeks to stubbornly oppose all British and U.S. proposals.

So close have Dr. Lyssarides' contacts been with Soviet diplomats on the island that he was observed receiving daily messages containing instructions on how to advise Makarios.

Blocking The Turks — Dr. Lyssarides is also credited with getting Archbishop Makarios to use his influence with the U.S. to head off a Turkish invasion of the island.

Turkish ships were enroute to Cyprus to land a force of 5,000 when Undersecretary of State George Ball, at Makarios' request, flew to Turkey to urge that the fleet be turned back to avoid civil war on Cyprus.

At Archbishop Makarios' side when he conferred with Ball was Dr. Lyssarides, who personally warned the State Department's No. 2 official that Russia would intervene with force if the U.S. did not stop the Turks.

Although keeping Dr. Lyssarides' activities under close surveillance, neither U.S. nor British authorities have been able to come up with a way to end his intrigue and break his link with the Soviets.

Soviet Island Strategy — Premier Khrushchev's intervention in Cyprus now appears to be part of his worldwide, island-capturing strategy — which already has added Cuba and Zanzibar to the Communist camp.

This Soviet plan of conquest, which has received little attention in the West, was first devised at a secret Moscow party conference in 1956 but not tested until Castro was given leave to take over Cuba in 1959.

This new strategy provided for stepping up Communist subversion on all strategic islands in the world and in countries with long coast lines that are hard to patrol.

Cuba was picked as the initial target by Khrushchev to determine U.S. reaction and whether such an island base could be held against outside military intervention once it passed under Communist control.

So successful was the Cuban operation that Premier Khrushchev in 1963 gave top Soviet priority for the take-over of Cyprus despite some grave misgivings by his top military officers.

Time and the reaction of NATO nations will determine whether Cyprus will be another Cuba.

Cyprus Fallout — Cypriot sources indicate that Archbishop Makarios is so concerned with his current unpopularity in the U.S. that he is seeking a meeting with President Johnson to improve his image.

The largest Greek underground, known simply as "The Organization," is run by 33-year-old Interior Minister Polykarpos Goerakadis. "The Organization" is run by 33-year-old Interior Minister Polykarpos Goerakadis. "The Organization" which operates in 100-man field companies, is armed with rifles, automatic weapons, mortars, and a few tanks.

The AKEL (Communist) party, which has less than 10,000 active members on the island, received 38 per cent of the vote in the last election.

U.S. officials are convinced that Makarios is not interested in an international peace-keeping force, but merely wants a U.N. guarantee of the island's "integrity and sovereignty" to head off Turkish intervention.

My husband says I am wrong that I should tell my mother right away. What should I do, Abby?

BROKEN-HEARTED MOTHER

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: Your husband is right, dear. Tell your mother. You need the support now of those who love you. Heartaches shared are somehow more bearable.

DEAR ABBY: Can you tell

By Lester L. Coleman, M.D.

Heart attacks during the deer hunting season were found to be three times more frequent than accidental deaths from gunshot wounds. These statistics induced physicians to investigate the reasons for this unusual finding.

Dr. Arthur C. Kerkhof and Dr. Charles P. Kolars of the Cardiac Work Evaluation Unit of the Minnesota Heart Association designed a series of tests that measured the amount of energy used in deer hunting. They felt that deer hunting was a strenuous exercise that placed a heavy burden on the hearts of middle-aged and elderly hunters.

The stresses were found to be particularly great in those who did not regularly exercise or did not keep physically fit to endure the rigors of hunting.

Known Factor

These doctors stated, "It is known that activities involved in deer hunting often demand high levels of energy expenditure. These may triple or quadruple the ordinary levels of energy expenditure to which the individual is subjected during the rest of the year."

In a research project to determine the physical demands of deer hunting, they subjected a group of 37 men, all over age 40, to arduous tests. All the candidates studied had no known evidence of any heart disease.

The subjects were made to exercise at high and low temperatures. They walked through difficult gravel terrain and climbed grades to a height of about eight feet. During both of these tests, there were no important changes in the electrocardiograph.

Then each man was made to drag a 100-pound sack of sand for a period of three minutes. Now the electrocardiograph showed definite abnormalities that indicated stress on the heart.

It was concluded from these findings that deer hunting should not be casually undertaken by middle-aged men who are out of condition, and certainly this activity should not be undertaken by those who have even a mild heart or blood vessel disease.

The extraordinary burden of such energy-consuming activity and its effects on their physical condition must be given consideration by hunters.

INACTIVITY

NOT GOOD, EITHER

"No one is certain if regular exercise will prevent cardiovascular (heart and blood vessel) disease, but it is certain that slothfulness or laziness doesn't help."

One of America's great cardiologists, Dr. Irvine H. Page, of the Cleveland Clinic, made this important statement at a recent medical meeting.

Dr. Page, a noted philosopher as well as cardiologist, has given patients and students all over the world the benefit of his wisdom in the prevention of heart disease. Dr. Page bluntly and wisely stated, "More women should try supporting themselves, instead of leaving it to corsets. More men should have a rear-view mirror on their executive desks. An occasional look into it would show them what is gaining on them. Physically, we have become lazy."

Speaking Of Your Health:

Hunting Is Strenuous

by William S. Penfield

Spartan
Men of the ancient Greek city of Sparta led a stern life. Their training began in boyhood when they were organized into bands.

Their clothing was simple and scanty. Every day they were drilled in gymnastics and military exercises, and they were taught to endure pain and hardship without complaint.

They were given very little to eat, which forced them to steal enough to supplement their diet. The object was to develop their strength and shrewdness. When a boy was caught stealing he was whipped for his awkwardness.

The purpose of this training was to produce a tough, well-disciplined soldier. From this severe way of life came the adjective "spartan," which means hardy, frugal, without luxuries.

Just Between Us —

—By Bobby Westbrook

The Pleasant part of coming back to work after a weekend is the mail which brings me up to date on all sorts of interesting situations. This week was particularly bright with letters from people in faraway places.

Bob and Betty Schell still working it out in Chicago took the opportunity to go hear Dr. Ernie Campbell, one of the "six nationally prominent preachers" to be featured in Lenten services at the Fourth Presbyterian Church in Chicago.

Bob said he's forgotten how really fine Ernest was in the pulpit. After the service they surprised him. It took a two-hour reunion over coffee to begin to catch him up on events since he left Stroudsburg.

Dr. Campbell, now pastor of Ann Arbor Church of 2,100 members, is fine—except for a broken wrist he got out of a skating party with a Junior High group, which sounds as if he hadn't lost his physical zip, either. Frances and the children are thriving, too.

As for the Schells they're thriving too, but anxious to get back for the end of howling and the beginning of golf. There was also a news-packed letter from Henri Baldwin, who claims the weather has been glorious for boating and golf, no matter what sour grape talk we hear up North.

I should really appoint her Florida correspondent, since they seem to have caught up with a lot of Poconians. The Franklin Smiths were spending a weekend before starting for home. A group went to the Beach Club to see the Dougliers; Roy, Reese, who is the maitre d' and John is in the Billy Mated Band. (While I was reading the letter Roy walked in the Daily Record office, but he's heading right back).

One funny coincidence: Henri was taking pictures of the boats passing the back door of their apartment on the waterway, when along came the Althorns in the Hula with "Fernwood and the Poconos" painted on the back. All unnoticed, she took a picture of them, including the Althorns whom she recognized were on board. Oh yes, and Jake James joined the Baldwin and Weisses for golf while he was down.

Oh well, we have our own brand of excitement at home. Maybe not so athletic but excitement is the same. The cheering section at Laurel Manor got pretty excited, I'll bet, when Mrs. Mathieson's grandson's team won five Sundays in a row on College Bowl.

Laurel Manor Cheers On College Bowl

Stroudsburg—The College Bowl on television attracts a wide audience every Sunday afternoon all over the country, but none more interested than the guests at Laurel Manor.

One of the contestants on the successful team from the University of Massachusetts, at Amherst, was the grandson of one of their own residents, Mrs. A. H. Mathieson, Sr.

He is David Mathieson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Mathieson. His father was graduated from Stroudsburg High School and East Stroudsburg State College and is now a professor at Amherst. David's prompt and correct answers in the series were in large part responsible for the remarkable showing of his team, which won five straight contests and were retired on Sunday as permanent holders of the trophy.

Their record brought a total of $10,000 for University of Massachusetts. A human highlight of the series was the fact that David had an appendectomy between one Sunday night appearance and the next but still managed to answer his share of questions.

Traffic through our Keystone Room has been more than usually heavy the past few days, largely, I think, because we were busy working out the details of our Corset and Lingerie Show and there were racks of filmy, ethereal peignoirs and gowns wherever one looked. I do not wish to imply that all of the "lookers" were my female co-workers, however. The men—many of whom usually take their coffee breaks at our fountain—were a riot across the new floor parading back and forth to and from the Employees' Lunch Room.

Women who feel that just any undergarment or intimate apparel is okay if it happens to hold together at strategic points and be clean, would change their tune, I'm sure, if they could see how very interested the male population is in pretty things.

"These colors are sure nice," one of my co-workers said, "but why do women wear such stuff where you can't see it? This would indicate, I believe, that many men would like their wives to get away from dark, basic colors and into something lighter, brighter, and cheerier. Soooo, if you are the "basic black" or "basic navy" type who never varies the wardrobe with heartwarming colors, why not give your family a pleasant jolt this Spring with something like Vanity Fair's Sun Gold... Petunia... Dawn Pink... Forever Orchid... Heaven Blue... Honey Beige... or Gossard-Artemis' Debutante Blue? Why not revive your own spirits and feel truly, excitingly, deliciously lovely with a print... a marvelous combination of brilliant shades blended in Vanity Fair's "Tulip" or in the same company's whimsical "Spring Fancy?"

Bobby Westbrook devoted one of her recent columns on this page to a discussion of color and the magic it can bring into one's life. She reflected back, as I have sometimes done, to the days when all kitchens were an ugly buff (practical, you know) and pots and pans were white or an ugly mottled agate. Toilet tissue was always white too, and, as Bobby put it, if you had any curtains at all they were lace. One need only turn to the women's magazines of that period to see what a dreary place home was.

Today, color is everywhere... thank goodness for that! From a woman's head to her toes she can sparkle... and from the skin out. Personally, I think it's a marvelous, gladstone thing. Don't you?

THE DAILY RECORD'S GOLD-STRIKE BOWLING CONTEST

$35.00 Cash Prize This Week

ANYONE CAN PLAY! ANYONE CAN WIN! ENTER TODAY!

ANSWER TO CONTEST NO. 46 APPEARS BELOW

"The following answers and pictures are certified correct by Lawrence K. Mason, Notary Public."

It's Easy!

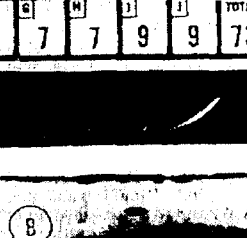

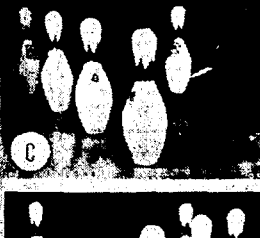

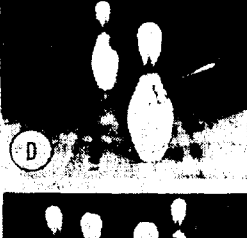

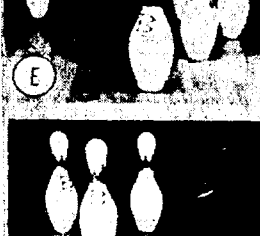

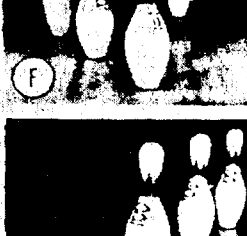

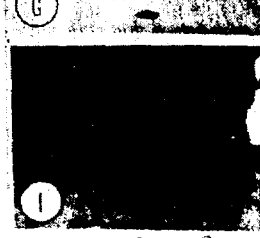

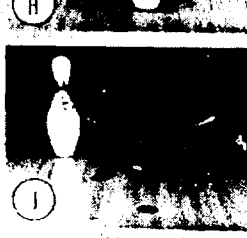

Just determine correctly the number of pins knocked down in each photo. Enter score and sponsor's name in the proper box below. Do not add each frame. Strikes count 10.

FOLLOW THESE EASY RULES:

On this page are clues and pictures in the advertisements of sports-minded Pocono Area business firms. Simply determine the number of pins knocked down as a result of the action depicted in each picture. Enter that number in the corresponding box on the entry blank. Do NOT add the scores as you go along as in regular bowling. But totaled together your individual scores should equal the total score indicated. Strikes are counted as 10 and do NOT affect the score in the succeeding box. Fill in the rest of the entry blank. To the person getting the exact correct score in each box and complying with the rules will go the cash prizes.

THIS WEEK'S ENTRIES MUST BE IN THE DAILY RECORD OFFICE OR POSTMARKED NO LATER THAN THURSDAY 4 P.M.

Anyone within the circulation area of The Daily Record except employees of this newspaper and members of their families are eligible. If more than one correct solution is received the prize money will be equally divided between the winners. If no correct answers are received an additional $5.00 will be added to next week's prize money. Until a total of $50.00 is offered. Decision of the judges is final and all contestants taking part agree to accept those decisions as a condition of entry. The name of the winner and pictures will be published next Tuesday. Watch for a new bowling contest each week in The Daily Record.

THE FRIENDS OF WHOM?

The Friends of Boxing organization in Scranton must be the friendliest group in the world. It's even got the boys who run the finance companies beat—and that's going some if you've ever seen any of their advertisements.

Following the Liston-Clay fiasco last week, there were many who immediately started comparing professional boxing to professional wrestling. "It's a fraud," shouted many (referring to boxing, in this particular instance).

It was only a matter of minutes, in fact, after the Liston sit-down, that the phone in The Daily Record office rang.

"Hello, Ken?" the voice inquired. "This is Jack Wood. What did you think of this fight?"

"Well," I replied, "I don't think it was fixed." But I had to agree it was a lousy fight. It certainly did not smack of the caliber of a heavyweight championship fight.

I still do not think it was fixed. I still believe it was one of the worst heavyweight title fights in the history of the sport. Who ever lost the heavyweight crown before sitting down on his stool while the fight up to that time had been regarded by those in charge of scoring the fight as just about even—give or take a point or two?

Jack Wood did not buy it. Neither did many others. The suspicion is still rampant. But there is yet no proof that the fight was fixed. There is still no proof that Liston did not have a damaged left arm. The pause, which was held up temporarily against Liston, has been released. Why? Because there was no proof.

No proof. But an awful lot of suspicion.

There are a lot of Jack Woods today holding barrels of thoughts concerning the fight.

My answer was this:

"What's the difference who won? You had a choice between an ex-convict and a clown as the supreme ruler of the heavyweight division. What's the difference?"

But that was immediately after the fight.

Now there's a lot of difference.

Clay is no longer a clown. He is a member of the Black Muslims—or, as he prefers to call it, the Islam religion. This is nothing to clown about.

This is an extremist group. Many call it a hate-mongering organization. Clay says it has shown him "the truth and the light."

But I wonder: The "truth and the light" about what?

I don't buy this either.

As one columnist observed: "Since people of unusual talent often feel compelled to do unusual things, Clay got himself involved..."

Adds this writer: "Which hat Clay will wear next isn't known, perhaps even to him. But it's pretty plain that a life that once was sweet and uncomplicated has grown frighteningly confused."

"One wipes away a tear for Cassius. Over the last three years, the mission to which he was dedicated has been completed. But the price he has paid is more than he suspects."

And now comes across our desk a press release from the Friends of Boxing—a group in Scranton which is sponsoring an All-Star Wrestling show March 11 at the Catholic Youth Center.

What a wonderful relationship this is! Friends of Boxing and professional wrestling!

But then, on second thought, maybe this kinship will prove quite compatible.

Cassius Clay already has admitted that he first got his idea for "showmanship" from the late Gorgeous George, pro wrestler extraordinaire. And Clay grew a mouth bigger than his biceps to talk his way into the heavyweight championship.

Now, one of two things becomes apparent. Either (1) Wrestling will be up-graded to the level of boxing, or (2) Boxing will be down-graded to the level of wrestling.

Apparently, the Friends of Boxing are hoping it will be No. 1.

Nobody Wants Them, So—They'll Play It Themselves

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP)—Nobody wants to play up-and-coming football powers Memphis

State and Southern Mississippi

so they decided to play each other—twice in the same season.

The Tigers and the Southerners will meet in Memphis Oct.

10 next fall and follow it up with a second game Nov. 21 in Jackson, Miss. Both sides are happy with the arrangement. It's a popular series and sure to make money.

This will be the first time two squads have played twice in regular season contests in these parts since the war years, when in 1944 Tennessee and Kentucky played two.

The problem is nobody wants to play either team. The fruits of victory are slim; and the embarrassment of a loss is ex-trême.

Southern burst prominently into the football scene in 1953

when it beat Alabama and Georgia of the Southeastern Conference. When they downed

Alabama again the next year,

they began to find name teams hard to sign.

As a result the Southerners lost their major college status.

They only got it back last year and maintained it for next season with the two Memphis State games.

Memphis State has made a phenomenal rise in the football world. The Tigers had a record second only to Texas last year with nine victories and one tie—with Mississippi.

But despite impressive qualifications Memphis State was passed over by bowl scouts.

Some say it was because other teams refused to take bowl berths opposite the Tigers.

No Shareholders For O'Malley

LOS ANGELES — Negotiations for 1964 between Sandy

Koufax and the Los Angeles

Dodgers opened modestly with

Sandy asking for a piece of the business.

When word of his request reached Walter Francis O'Malley, the Great White Father smiled indulgently. The last bid for partnership, he reflected,

had come from the county tax assessor.

A man asking intrusions on

O'Malley's money had better have something more than an honest look and a fund of persuasive arguments on why part of the pot ought to be his. He is advised to have something authoritative, like a revolver.

Koufax suggested at first that some formula be worked out whereby he participated in gate receipts on those nights that he worked. He also noted that thought should be given to the role of the athlete where pay television was concerned.

If O'Malley owned a cleaning and pressing shop and Koufax walked in and offered to sell him protection, Walter couldn't have been more shocked.

Quietly, he made it clear to Puzzie Bavasi, his general manager, that he wanted employees only, not shareholders.

"I guess I would have to go from seat to seat and pose the question," replied Walter.

"Pardon me, sir, did you come to the park tonight especially to see Koufax?"

37-Year-Old Duke Snider Happy As Career Goes On

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla. (AP)—

Duke Snider is 37, an age when ball players begin to think thoughts like how much does the pension fund pay? How much longer can I last? Where do I go from here?

After years of top salaries,

the Duke probably is well off.

He has an avocado farm in California and an interest in a howling center.

Even now, in what could be his last year, Snider reportedly is getting $31,500 from the New York Mets as a part time outfielder. In a few years with his 403 home runs and his World Series records he will be a likely candidate for the Hall of Fame.

Blames Polo Grounds

"At one time I thought I might retire," the Duke said as he walked his team to bat in a

Met workout at Huggins-Stengel field. "But I felt pretty good physically. I didn't have the year I expected last year. I blame some of that on the Polo

Grounds. You hit one way out there and it fouls you up on the road. I never was too comfortable in the Polo Grounds.

"So, I decided to give it another try to see what I could do.

This probably will be the last.

I can't say for sure. It depends on a lot of things. Who knows,

I might get traded. I hear I almost went to the Giants last August."

He is reportedly headed for the Detroit Tigers now.

Traded To Mets

Snider played his entire career with the Dodgers at Brooklyn and Los Angeles until last spring when he was traded to the Mets just before the season opened. He still has close ties to the Dodgers.

"I pulled for them all last year, except when we played them," Snider said. "Then I tried my best to beat them. I wasn't surprised to see them beat the Yankees, but I thought it would go six games.

"I'd like to manage some day if anybody would want me. I have had the opportunity to play under so many different personalities. Men like Chuck Dres-

sen, Leo Durocher, Walter Alston, Ben Shotton and now Casey

Stengel. That is quite an array of talent.

"You can learn a lot from men like that.

"But that is all future talk. I think I can help the Mets as a player. I can't play every day anymore. I'm ready to play as much as Casey wants me."

NFL Cancels Television Proposal Of Friday Tilts

NEW YORK (AP)—National

Football League Commissioner

Pete Rozelle issued a statement

Monday denying that the league planned to nationally televise

Friday night pro football games and apparently ended a short-lived conflict with the NCAA and many of the nation's high school football organizations.

"Speculation has developed during the past three weeks concerning the possible nationwide televising of National Football League games on five Friday nights next fall," Rozelle's prepared statement said.

"The NFL has termed such reports premature and can now say with certainty that no Friday night national telecasts will be carried."

An NFL spokesman emphasized, however, that the decision by the league commissioner in no way disturbs a long-standing league provision allowing individual clubs to telecast their road games, Friday or otherwise, back to their home areas.

The word on the possible national telecasting of the five Friday night game leaked out when a sponsor sought to line them up in a series and asked for air time from a national television network.

The NFL repeatedly has called the sponsor-network announcement "premature."

That announcement brought fire from both the National Collegiate Athletic Association, through executive director Walter Byers and Asa Bushnell, head of the NCAA television program, and from various high school organizations.

Cites Violation

"In each case the protesting organizations argued that the Friday night period falls in the high school and college domain and any infringement by the pros is a violation of the federal antitrust law passed in 1961.

None of the protesting spokesmen were available for comment immediately following Rozelle's statement.

His statement said that work on the 1964 schedule so far

"makes it clear that individual clubs will not be playing a series of Friday night games," making it impossible to line up the prospective series.

Columbia Broadcasting System will televise regular Sunday NFL games.

One Has Universe Tag, Other Miss America

Two Miss Pocono Pageants

STROUDSBURG — In an effort to avoid confusion over the two beauty and talent pageants to be held in the Poconos, sponsors of both pageants have given a concise description of their contests.

Mrs. Robert A. Miller, Stroudsburg, said that she is running the "original" Miss Pocono Mountains Pageant. Barrett Junior Women's Club is sponsoring the Miss Pocono Mountains Pageant.

"There already is a Miss Pocono Mountains for 1964," she said. "It is Monica Bork of Stroudsburg. She was selected at the pageant held last September 28, sponsored by the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau."

Mrs. Miller said that Miss Bork will be representing the Poconos in the state-wide contest, preliminary to the Miss Universe contest. She said that the date of the state contest had not been set, but it will be held before the national contest on June 15 in Miami.

She added that she switched the contest from the spring to the fall so it would not conflict with the Laurel Blossom Festival.

"This year the contest for Miss Pocono Mountains of 1965 will be held in ESSC auditorium on Saturday, Sept. 26. It will be the tenth anniversary of the Miss Pocono Mountains Pageant," Mrs. Miller said.

Franchise Lost

The Miss Pocono Mountains

Pageant was formerly associated with the Miss America contest, but the franchise was lost three years ago when the number of state-wide contestants was cut.

Pocono girls at that time had to enter the Lehigh Valley contest for a berth in the Miss America preliminaries.

Mrs. Miller said that she then switched the pageant to the Miss Universe contest rather than leave the Poconos without a pageant.

"The franchise was picked up this year by the Barrett Junior Women's Club, named the Miss Pocono Pageant. It is described later.

Mrs. Miller said that the winner of the Miss Pocono Mountains Pageant will receive the usual four-year senatorial scholarship from Senator William Z. Scott, Jr., of Lansford, good for Penn, Pitt, Temple, or Penn State.

"This is the same amount of aid that Miss Pennsylvania of the Miss America Contest receives from the Governor," Mrs. Miller said.

The winners also get from $100 to $500 in cash scholarships.

"I have directed programs which have given over $1,600 to girls for scholarships since 1959," she said.

She noted that in 1960, $500 was given to the top three girls, while Miss Congeniality got $200.

"This year the winner will get a one-year cash scholarship to ESSC," she said. "The scholarships come from businesses and individuals, while the ticket proceeds go to civic organizations."

She also talked of the other pageants in the Poconos, such as the second Little Miss Pocono Mountains and the Jaycee-sponsored Pocono Junior Miss contests.

She said that the Pocono Junior Miss contest is growing, and that it is open to high school seniors. The state winner of the Junior Miss gets $1,000 from the Coca Cola bottlers of the state and a gubernatorial scholarship, totaling "more than any other contest on that level, to my knowledge," she said.

To Be Televised

"The national Junior Miss contest will be held in Mobile, Ala., March 15. It will be televised nationally," Mrs. Miller said.

Getting back to the Miss Pocono Mountains contest, she said that the contest was open to girls in college or working from ages 18 to 25, never married, from Carbon, Wayne, Pike or Monroe Counties.

"The proceeds from both the Pocono Junior Miss and the Miss Pocono Mountains Pageant will go to the proposed Sheltered Workshop," according to Mrs. Miller.

Mrs. Miller said she has received letters from Stroudsburg and East Stroudsburg merchants, unanimously endorsing the annual Miss Pocono Mountains Pageant.

The Barrett Junior Women's Club, sponsored by the Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, has purchased the franchise for a Miss America preliminary.

The winner of the pageant will represent the Poconos in the Miss Pennsylvania Pageant, West Chester, Pa., in late June. The Miss Pennsylvania Pageant will be televised on Channel Three, WRCV-TV, Philadelphia.

Miss Poconos pageant will be run in accordance with rules and policy set forth by the Miss America Pageant in Atlantic City. The staging will take place April 4 at 8 p.m. on the stage of Pocono Mountain Joint Junior Senior High School.

Contestants are to be residents or students in Wayne, Pike and Monroe Counties, between the ages of 18 and 28, single, never married and must present a three minute talent routine on stage.

A panel of five judges will score each girl on her ability and how well she does in relation to her own ability. The girls will not be judged one against the other, but rather on the basis of how well a girl uses her talent and ability.

Stage sets have been designed by Barton Dunlap, art teacher at Pocono Mountain Joint High School. He has designed sets for the production which will use the theme, "Passport To Fun."

Lighting will be done by Lee Wesner, a member of the staff of last year's Miss Pennsylvania Pageant, which was televised on Channel Three. He has announced that he will use an innovation in stage lighting, "black light" which will be used for the evening gown presentation and in such a manner that the audience will be able to see the effect change from standard stage lighting to the special effect.

A ramp will be constructed for each contestant to promenade in her evening gown. It will be used by the winner in her triumphal walk after her coronation as Miss Poconos.

Mrs. Ernest LaBar will provide musical continuity and background for the pageant at the console of the Allen Organ, provided by Sleep's Piano and Organ, East Stroudsburg.

Set Up Housing

Mrs. Judy Leister, executive director, and Mrs. Dale Price, assistant executive director, have arranged for accommodations for out-of-town judges and other guests at local resorts.

The winner will receive a four-year senatorial scholarship from Sen. William Z. Scott, Jr., of Lansford, which may be used at Temple University, University of Pennsylvania, University of Pittsburgh or Pennsylvania State University.

She will receive an official Miss America Crown and trophy and will have her choice of an evening gown provided by A. B. Wyckoff department store which she will wear in the Miss Pennsylvania Pageant.

The first runner-up will receive an official Miss America Trophy. Miss Congeniality, who is chosen by secret ballot of the contestants, will also receive an official Miss America trophy. The trophies have been provided by Schneider's General, Mountaintown.

Souvenir programs will be used the night of the pageant, which show Miss Donna Axum, the current Miss America, on the cover in full color. Inside pages will carry pictures of the contestants with notes on their backgrounds and future hopes.

The Miss Pocono Pageant is backed by the Pocono Mountains Chamber of Commerce, East Stroudsburg Merchants Association, Pocono Mountains Junior Chamber of Commerce and Stroudsburg Businessmen's Association.

During the past two weeks, various civic and service organizations in the area have received oral progress reports on the pageant from a representative of the Barrett Junior Women's Club.

The Barrett Lions, Stroudsburg Lions, Stroudsburg Business and Professional Women's Association, Pocono Mountains Vacation Bureau, Pocono Mountains Rotary Club, Pocono Mountain Association and Soroptimists have received the report.

A similar progress report will be presented to other organizations in the next weeks.

Committee chairman will give reports on their progress at the meeting of the club Thursday at 8:30 p.m. at Onawa Lodge, Mountaintown.

The announcement of the master of ceremonies who will be host for the production will be made by Mrs. W. Roy Williams, producer-director.

Tickets are available from members of the club and will be sold at the door. Proceeds of the event will be used by the club in community betterment projects.

IRS Offers Three Tips

For Filers Of Income Tax

STROUDSBURG — Kenneth O. Hook, district director, Internal Revenue Service, yesterday announced three tips for people making out income tax returns.

First, a simplified method for computing the deductible cost of operating an automobile.

Second, exemptions for birth and death, and, third, businessmen's salaries, wages, fees, commissions or other personal service compensation of $600 or more.

He said certain items relating to the cost of operating a car, such as depreciation and insurance, could not be taken into account in computing the amount paid for transportation in rendering gratuitous services to a charitable organization or with respect to medical care.

It has been determined that five cents a mile is reasonable rate to figure this deduction.

Hook said if a child was born alive at any time during the year, you may claim the full $600 exemption if all other dependency tests are met. This is true even though the child may have lived only momentarily. It is also true for a child born on the last day of the year. An exemption may not be claimed for a stillborn child.

Businessmen must file information returns covering 1963 payments of salaries, wages, fees, commissions and other personal service compensation of $600 or more that is not reported on W-2 Forms.

Payments for rents, royalties, annuities, pensions and other fixed or determinable income totaling $600 or more must also be reported.

Information returns must also be filed by papers of dividends or interest of $10 or more to any one person during 1963. The payers must also furnish recipients of dividends and interest with a record of the amounts reported to the government.

For additional information on filing personal income tax contact the local Internal Revenue Service office in the Stroudsburg Post Office.
